Albert Anderson Clymer

Albert Anderson Clymer, a Denison, TX reared realist, whose goals were once set on an architectural career, has painted a path to fame since trading his T-square and drafting board for an artist's brush and canvas. While attending Texas A & M University he became aware of design through architecture courses and began experimenting with painting techniques, painting on Masonite fiberboard-to create his own style: Brushing a thin wash of color to areas of a painting to achieve unusual effects dispersing a coagulation of the color wash with the board lying flat or slightly tilted. Within seconds, the coagulation begins and can be stopped if held in sunlight. In 1967 Al abandoned architecture to become a professional artist. The transition was an easy one because it fit in with his life goals. "I wanted to be self-employed-to have absolute freedom".

Monique Parker

Monique earned an MFA in Creative Writing, a BA in Mass Communications, and advanced teaching certifications in Vedic Chanting and Yoga Therapy. She located to the Questa area from Santa Cruz, CA in 2001. For the past twenty-three years, she has dedicated herself to teaching, writing, spiritual studies—and now art. Her paintings are inspired by her many pilgrimages to India, as well as living in NM with its rugged landscape, diverse cultures, and shifting light. Her process relies heavily on her intuition and connection to nature and spiritual energy. She is inspired to paint in unexpected and serendipitous ways that allow her to challenge herself to constantly try new techniques. Painting for Monique is an act of worship that allows her to be a conduit for the unpredictability and magic of creating something from emptiness.
